How to Apply â?? University of Sydney International Stipend Scholarship (USYDIS) 2027â??2028

Direct application through the host university

International students must apply through the University of Sydneyâ??s official admission and scholarship application process. Applications are submitted directly to the university, not through an embassy, government agency or home-country nominating organisation.

Step-by-step application process

Step 1: Choose a research programme

Visit the University of Sydney course search and select an eligible Higher Degree by Research (HDR) programme, such as a Masterâ??s by Research or PhD.

Step 2: Check admission requirements

Review the academic qualifications, English language requirements and other entry conditions for your chosen research programme.

Step 3: Find a suitable research supervisor

Explore the universityâ??s research areas and identify a potential supervisor whose expertise matches your proposed research topic. Check the relevant facultyâ??s supervision requirements.

Step 4: Apply for university admission

www.fullyfunded.info

Submit your HDR admission application through the Sydney Courses application portal. Include all required academic documents and supporting materials before the relevant deadline.

Step 5: Complete the scholarship application

Submit the RTP scholarship application form through the University of Sydney Scholarships Office. This application allows eligible international applicants to be considered for the University of Sydney International Stipend Scholarship (USYDIS) and other applicable research stipend scholarships.

Step 6: Submit before the deadline

Ensure both your admission application and scholarship application are submitted by the relevant application deadline.

Step 7: Wait for the selection results

The university assesses applications competitively based on academic merit, research experience and other selection criteria. Successful applicants receive an official scholarship outcome from the university.

Is this scholarship fully funded or tuition-only?

The University of Sydney International Stipend Scholarship (USYDIS) is a fully funded scholarship, not just a tuition fee award. It provides 100% tuition fee coverage through an associated tuition fee scholarship, an annual living stipend of AUD $44,293 (2027 rate), relocation allowances, eligible health insurance coverage and a thesis allowance. Additional benefits are subject to the universityâ??s terms and conditions.

Which nationalities and study levels are eligible?

The scholarship is open to eligible international students from all countries, with no specific nationality restrictions listed in the official eligibility conditions. Applicants must be commencing or currently enrolled in a Higher Degree by Research (HDR) programme at the University of Sydney. Eligible study levels include a Masterâ??s by Research (including MPhil) and a Doctor of Philosophy (PhD). Applicants must meet the universityâ??s academic admission requirements and scholarship selection criteria.

Is university admission required before the scholarship application?

Yes. Applicants must submit an application for admission to an eligible Higher Degree by Research (HDR) programme at the University of Sydney before their scholarship application can be assessed. New applicants must complete two steps: first, apply for research degree admission through Sydney Courses, and then submit the separate RTP scholarship application form before the deadline. Currently enrolled HDR students only need to submit the scholarship application form. A confirmed admission offer is not required before submitting the scholarship application.

What is the exact deadline and timezone?

The next application deadline is 18 December 2026 for Research Periods 3 and 4 of 2027. The University of Sydney has not officially specified an exact closing time or timezone on its scholarship page. Applicants should check the online application portal and submit both their research admission and scholarship applications before the deadline. The university is based in Sydney, Australia (AEDT, UTC+11 during December), but this timezone should not be presented as a confirmed application closing timezone.

Is there an application fee?

No separate application fee is listed for the USYDIS scholarship application. However, international applicants may need to pay a non-refundable processing fee when applying for admission to a research degree at the University of Sydney. This is separate from the scholarship application fee.
