

University of Toronto Presidentsâ?? Impact Scholarship 2027 CAD 320,000 Doctoral Funding

Description

The University of Toronto in Canada offers the Presidentsâ?? Impact Scholarship Program to support outstanding doctoral researchers. The 2027 cohort will begin in September 2027, with funding of CAD 80,000 per year for four years. Applications are expected to open in late fall 2026. The opportunity may benefit talented PhD and SJD applicants from Canada and around the world who demonstrate academic excellence, innovation, and a strong commitment to solving real-world challenges through interdisciplinary research. Official eligibility requirements and application procedures are expected to be announced by the university.

Scholarship Overview

- Host country: Canada
- Host institution: University of Toronto
- Study level / opportunity type: PhD and SJD (doctoral studies)
- Funding classification: Fully Funded
- Total funding: CAD 320,000 over four years
- Application deadline: Not yet announced
- Current status: Announced; application details are forthcoming

- Expected start date: September 2027

Benefits

- Annual funding: CAD 80,000 per year for four years, totalling CAD 320,000.
- Tuition fees: Not separately specified on the official scholarship page.
- Monthly stipend / living allowance: Monthly payment arrangements are not specified. The scholarship provides annual funding of CAD 80,000.
- Travel or airfare: Not specified.
- Health insurance: Not specified as a separate scholarship benefit.
- Accommodation: Not specified.
- Visa fees: Not specified.
- Books and research allowance: Not specified as separate benefits.
- Professional development: Custom professional development and networking opportunities.
- Research experience: An experiential placement offering opportunities to engage with government, industry or international partners.
- Academic collaboration: Interdisciplinary research with two faculty supervisors from different disciplines.

Note: The official page confirms the total annual funding but does not provide a detailed breakdown of tuition, living expenses or additional allowances. Avoid claiming that these costs are separately covered until the university publishes the full funding terms.

Eligibility Criteria

- Nationality: The official eligibility requirements for nationality and residency have not yet been confirmed.
- Academic qualifications: Applicants should review the admission requirements of their chosen doctoral programme at the University of Toronto.
- Study level: Doctoral studies, including PhD and SJD programmes.
- Age limit: Not yet specified.
- Work experience: No specific work experience requirement has been confirmed.
- Language requirements: Applicants must check the English language requirements of their chosen graduate programme.
- University admission: Applicants should identify a suitable graduate programme and follow its admission process and deadlines.
- Nomination requirements: A separate nomination process has not yet been confirmed.
- Research interests: Applicants should consider the programme's interdisciplinary research focus and annual societal challenge.

Important: The first cohort is expected to begin in September 2027, and the scholarship application details are forthcoming. Applicants should check the official programme announcement for the final eligibility criteria before applying.

Available fields or programmes

- Study level: PhD and SJD (doctoral studies).

- Research areas: The scholarship will focus on an annual societal challenge. Specific research themes and participating programmes for the 2027 cohort have not yet been confirmed.
- Potential areas of research: Artificial intelligence, quantum technologies, genomics, biomedical sciences, sustainability, public policy and cybersecurity. These are examples mentioned by the university, not a confirmed list of eligible programmes.

How to Apply

1. Check the official announcement: Visit the University of Toronto's School of Graduate Studies website for the latest application information.
2. Review the eligibility criteria: Check the academic requirements, eligible doctoral programmes and selection criteria when they are announced.
3. Prepare your application: Gather the required academic documents and research information according to the official instructions.
4. Submit your application: Follow the application route and submission instructions published by the University of Toronto.
5. Complete any additional requirements: Submit any supplementary documents or information requested by the university.
6. Wait for the selection decision: Monitor your email and application portal for updates from the university.

Application route: The scholarship is offered by the University of Toronto. The specific submission process has not yet been announced. Applicants should wait for the official application instructions before submitting.

Application opening: Expected in late fall 2026. The first cohort is expected to begin in September 2027.

Required Documents

The University of Toronto has not yet published the complete application requirements for the 2027 Presidentsâ?? Impact Scholarship Program.

- CV or rÃ©sumÃ©: Not yet confirmed.
- Academic transcripts: Not yet confirmed.
- Degree certificates: Not yet confirmed.
- Letters of recommendation: Not yet confirmed.
- Research proposal: Not yet confirmed.
- English language test results: Not yet confirmed.
- Passport copy: Not yet confirmed.

Note: Applicants should check the official application guidelines when they are released. The required documents, file formats and submission procedures have not yet been announced.

Important Dates

- Application opening date: Expected in late fall 2026.
- Application deadline: Not yet announced.
- Nomination deadline: Not yet announced.
- Interview period: Not yet announced.
- Results announcement: Not yet announced.
- Programme start date: September 2027.

Note: The University of Toronto has not yet published the complete scholarship application timeline. Doctoral programme admission deadlines vary by department and may occur before the scholarship application opens. Check the university's official announcement for updates.

Is this scholarship fully funded or tuition-only?
For FAQs Is this scholarship fully funded or tuition-only?

The University of Toronto Presidents' Impact Scholarship 2027 offers CAD 80,000 per year for four years, totalling CAD 320,000 in doctoral funding. However, the university has not yet published a detailed breakdown confirming whether tuition and all other study expenses are covered. Applicants should review the official funding terms when they are announced.

Which nationalities and study levels are eligible?

The University of Toronto Presidents' Impact Scholarship 2027 is intended for outstanding doctoral applicants from Canada and around the world. The eligible study levels are PhD and SJD (Doctor of Juridical Science). Final nationality and eligibility requirements have not yet been announced.

Is university admission required before the scholarship application?

Yes, applicants should plan to apply for admission to a suitable doctoral programme at the University of Toronto. However, the university has not yet confirmed whether admission must be secured before submitting the separate Presidents' Impact Scholarship application. The scholarship application process and eligibility details are expected in late fall 2026.

What is the exact deadline and timezone?

- The exact application deadline and timezone for the University of Toronto Presidents' Impact Scholarship 2027 have not yet been announced. Applications are expected to open in late fall 2026, with the first cohort beginning in September 2027. Applicants should also check their chosen doctoral programme's separate admission deadline.

Is there an application fee?

The application fee for the University of Toronto Presidents' Impact Scholarship 2027 has not yet been confirmed separately. However, the university charges a CAD 135 graduate application fee for programmes starting in September 2027. Additional programme-specific fees may apply. Applicants should check the official scholarship instructions when they are released.

Category

1. Scholarships

Author
admin